

Budget Worksheet

"You don't get rich by what you earn. You get rich by what you don't spend." Henry Ford

Introduction

An important first step in money management is to create a budget. A budget is a spending plan - an estimate of expected income and expenses over time. It should be adjusted as your financial circumstances change. Try to set up an "emergency" fund, save and invest for your future, and pay off debts as fast as possible.

Step 1

First, track your daily spending. For one month, write down every single item you purchase. Be sure to include coffee, parking, lunches, stuff for the kids, dry cleaning, credit card payments, postage, etc. This will help you identify exactly where you spend money, and help identify opportunities to better manage your money and perhaps reduce spending.

Step 2

List all your monthly income sources. Include salaries/wages, tips, commissions, and child support/other support, etc. If you are paid weekly or twice-monthly, or if you receive occasional income, you will need to adjust the amounts to reflect a monthly amount. Then total all your income sources.

Step 3

List all your monthly expenses, bills, and debts owed. Some expenses (such as insurance & property taxes) may be billed quarterly or semi-annually, so adjust them to reflect a monthly amount. Then total all your expenses.

Step 4

Compare your Monthly Income to Monthly Expenses to get a clear picture of where you spend your money. Think about where your money goes and consider what opportunities exist for savings, retirement funds, and debt reduction. Often, as a result of seeing all expenses on paper, consumers can distinguish opportunities to reduce their spending.

Also, contact your creditors, service providers, and other account holders to see if you qualify for any discounts. For example, retail stores and phone companies often offer promotional discounts which may save you money.

Manage Your Money

It is imperative that you start establishing or rebuilding your credit profile, but it is just as important to have a budget and make a commitment to spend money on your necessities first. When going back through your worksheet, you may find new ways to save even more money.

Financial Literacy

Financial Literacy is the ability to read, analyze, manage, and communicate about your personal finances. Having financial knowledge helps to create a budget that fits your personal financial goals.
